Dolphin watch

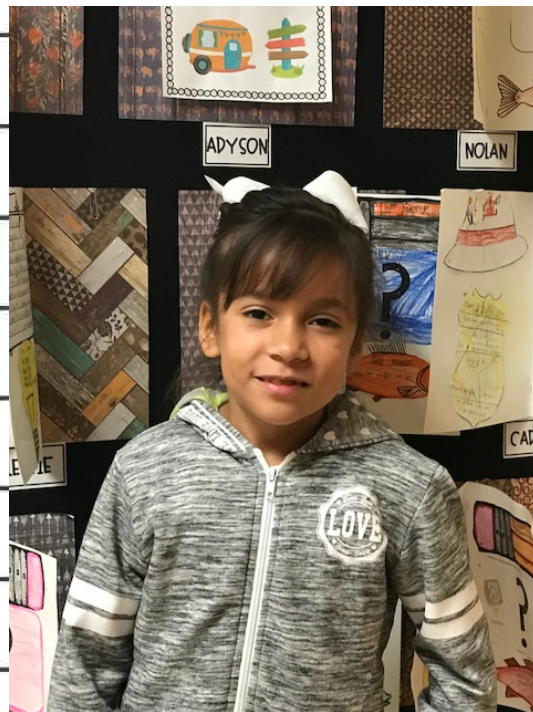

1) My little sister tugged on my arm as I stared at one of the big boats by the docks of South Padre. I was wondering if we were going to get on one of them or if we were going to get on a dolphin watch boat.

My mom asked me if I wanted to go to the beach. I said "no". My dad said "oh I remember a place named Dolphin Watch. Lets go!"

It felt like an hour but then finally we were on the boat. A minute later, dolphins were jumping everywhere. They were beautiful, gracefully jumping in and out of the water. I felt like jumping in the water with them!

I was so glad because that was my first time ever on a boat and also seeing dolphins too!

Interviewer: "What does someone have to do to write really well?"

Emily: "They have to add lots of details and stay on topic. They also need a good beginning and a good ending. But most importantly, to write really well you need to write about things that are close to their heart."
