NISD Board of Trustees Approves Attendance Boundaries for New Middle School

The attendance boundaries for Northwest ISD's newest school were approved at last night's Board of Trustees meeting.

Truett Wilson Middle School, which will open in August 2012 in the Sendera Ranch neighborhood, will serve sixth- through eighth-grade students who live in the following elementary school attendance zones:

- Haslet Elementary
- Sendera Ranch Elementary
- Thompson Elementary

The attendance boundary was based on a recommendation by the Northwest ISD administration and a parent advisory committee. Serving on the advisory committee were parents from the following schools: Chisholm Trail and Pike middle schools, as well as Sendera Ranch, Thompson, Haslet, Nance and Schluter elementary schools. The attendance boundaries for Medlin and Tidwell middle schools are not affected and therefore will remain the same as the 2011-2012 school year.

General questions regarding the attendance boundaries can be directed to 817-215-0175. Northwest ISD will allow students who currently attend Pike or Chisholm Trail middle school – and are now zoned to attend the new Wilson Middle School – to complete an intra-district transfer application to remain at Pike or Chisholm Trail. However, transportation will not be provided by Northwest ISD for families who wish to pursue this option. To learn more about the transfer process, please visit www.nisdtx.org/studenttransfers, or call 817-215-0145.

Truett Wilson Middle School will be the fifth middle school in Northwest ISD, which continues to experience rapid growth in student enrollment. The campus is named in honor of former NISD teacher, principal and superintendent, Truett Wilson. Northwest ISD expects to name the principal of Wilson Middle School at the January 9 school board meeting.
