

Phonological Processing Components

Phonemic awareness - the ability to hear, identify, and manipulate individual sounds (phonemes) in spoken words.

Phonological memory – coding information phonologically from temporary storage in working, or short-term memory.

Rapid Naming – rapidly naming of digits, letters, objects, or colors that requires efficient retrieval of phonological information from long-term, or permanent, memory.